STRUCK DOWN BY FALL PAUL REYNAL MAY DIE

Popular Monongahela
Outfielder "Beaned"
By a Friend

HAPPENS IN BALL GAME

Church League Teams of Monongahela Engaged in
Struggle at Time

Unconscious and it is feared with his skull fractured, Paul Reynal, the star outfielder of the Monongahela baseball team was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital this morning for an operation. He was hit by a "bean" ball in a baseball game at Monongahela Monday night.

The Lutherans and Presbyterians of the Church league were playing. Reynal was playing first base as a substitute for Clyde Jenkins of the Presbyterian team. He was at bat in the fourth inning. Ray McKee, a member with Reynal on the Monongahela team was pitching for the Lutherans.

With two strikes and three balls on him, Reynal was instructed to wait. When the next ball left McKee's hands, Reynal saw it would be high and ducked ready to travel to first base. The ball was a fast one and when it struck him on the left temple he dropped like lead.

He was not rendered unconscious at the time, but was able to walk to a buggy. Arriving home at West Monongahela he went into convulsions, becoming unconscious. Consciousness has not returned since.

McKee, the pitcher, is a close friend and a teammate of the injured man. He left the field immediately after the accident. He is almost prostrated with grief and says he will never pitch another game of ball.

The boy is 5 feet 6 inches tall, has dark eyes and brown hair, and was dressed in a dark blue bloomer suit, light felt hat with black band and purple tie. His mother lives in California.

Mr. Lee has asked that news of the boy's whereabouts be sent to William A. Woods of 151 Second street, Monessen. Inquiry is also being directed to Youngstown, O., and Cleveland where it is possible he may have gone.

PAYING SCHOOL FUNDS

Work of Making Appropriations Started by
State

STATE BOARD IS BUSY

Payment of the state school appropriation has been started by State Treasurer Young and several hundred thousand dollars have already been paid out to the districts which have been certified by the Department of Public Instruction as having filed the necessary reports. It is expected that large sums will be paid out during the next six weeks, and the smaller districts, which are in need of funds, are being given consideration.

Under the school code the payment of the appropriation begins in July instead of June, as heretofore, and over 2,500 districts are to be paid when they file the required reports. The amount for distribution to the school districts which Treasurer Young will disburse is $6,797,068.18. This does not include the allowances for administration or for high schools.

CHURCH EUCHE PLEASING EVENT

The euche was in charge of Miss Winifred Oates assisted by the Misses Winifred Guller, Gertrude Mangan and Ada Kauffe. The consolation favor was awarded to D. Shields.

BOY SMOTHERS TO DEATH UNDER DIRT

Fourteen-Year-Old Brick Worker Has Awful
Death at Manown—Takes Two Hours
to Dig Him Out

Caught under a fall of dirt at the Manown Brick works opposite Monongahela Monday afternoon, Glen Munger, aged 14, the son of Henry Munger of Manown, was smothered to death.

Glen was employed about the brick works at some little job. He happened to be about a tunnel that was used in getting dirt to the works, after it was hauled there by car. Through accident there was a fall of dirt and the boy was caught underneath.

It took two hours for workmen at the brick plant to dig him out and when they did recover him life was extinct. The family to which he belonged is well known about Manown and at Monongahela.

PAPER PUBLISHED IN YEAR 1832 WENT TO HEAVEN; SHE'S BACK NOW

Copy of "Allegheny Democrat" in the Hands of North
Charleroi Resident

Congressional activity during the time that the fiery Andrew Jackson was president is reported in an old copy of the Allegheny Democrat of the date of May 22, 1832, which is in possession of Mrs. W. L. Kline of North Charleroi. The paper was published at Pittsburgh. The session of congress referred to was the twenty-second.

In the congressional reports several names familiar to American history are mentioned, among them being Henry Clay and Polk. John C. Calhoun was vice president at the time.

Democratic candidates for office are announced in the paper. Jackson's name is carried as the candidate for president, with William Wilkins as the candidate for vice president. For governor, the name of George Wolf is published. As a matter of fact Wolf served a term as governor dating from 1829 to 1835.

The "Democrat" is a six-column weekly with the front page covered with ads. The issue is No. 41 of volume V of a new series and the whole number is 415.

Advertising matter furnishes the greatest interest. One stage coach line announces with great display "mail coaches from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia," the trip requiring four days. From Pittsburgh to Baltimore, Md., the fast line trip requires three days. However, another line that is advertised for quick service agrees to deliver a passenger safely in Philadelphia from Pittsburgh in three days. Fifty pounds of baggage to a passenger could be carried the risk being entirely to the passenger.

Lottery advertisements, the like of which if carried in these days of advancement and progress would result in any newspaper being thrown out of the mails, are staple and material adds. Huge prizes are offered to the individual that holds the lucky tickets, the prizes in some places ranging from $12,000 down to a few dollars.

A stray cow must have got loose in Pittsburgh about three days before press time, for there is an advertisement announcing the fact that a very much embarrassed gentleman would appreciate the return of his gentle bovine. A hotel is advertised with good accommodations.

In those days the exchange editor must have been a very busy person for the "Democrat" is chock full of clippings from exchanges. A boy in Wheeling got a limb broken through the devilish instrumentality of a rambunctious horse and the "Democrat" gives the item four lines with credit to the proper exchange.

The paper is unique, but newsy. It is not hard to imagine readers grabbing for it the same that they would seize the up-to-date daily of 1913. Everything is done up neatly in the publication and the printing is good. The age-yellowed paper and the peculiar construction of the type with the make-up gives it an air of distinction and old-fashioned dignity.

OBJECTIONS ARE MADE TO HITTING GROUNDS

Receiver
Appointed

Bankruptcy Proceedings
Started for Pawnee Bill
and Buffalo Bill

The famous Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill show is in the hands of a receiver. Deputy United States Marshall Snowden Monday served Gordon W. Lillie (Pawnee Bill), president of the Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill Wild West show, with papers in involuntary bankruptcy proceedings. The petition was filed in the United States court at Trenton, N. J.

Samuel D. Oliphant of Trenton, was named as referee and he immediately named D. Clinton Cook as receiver of the famous show. The concern is a New Jersey corporation with its main offices at Trenton.

The show appeared for the first and only time in Charleroi last year.

TWO BIG PICNICS AT PARK

Churches to Enjoy Outings This Week at
Eldora

PROGRAMS ARRANGED

Final arrangements have been made for the two big church picnics to be held this week at Eldora park. The Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association of Charleroi has charge of the first on Wednesday that will be for St. Jerome's Roman Catholic church of Charleroi. Committees are at work getting things in shape. The picnic will be an all day affair. The L. C. B. A. has the park chartered and everything will be free to the visitors once they get inside. The outing is to be public. There is to be dancing as one of the chief features. A refreshment stand will be operated.

Monongahela, Monessen, Charleroi, Donora, Belle Vernon, Riverview, and Library are all interested in the second picnic of the week which will take place on Thursday. On this day the Baptists from the places mentioned will gather at the park. Each church will wear a certain kind of ribbon to denote the church they belong to. Special cars will leave Monongahela and down river points at 8:45 o'clock and Charleroi and up river points at 10 o'clock. Amusements are to be operated for the Baptists. Sheridan Roberts of Monongahela is the chairman of a sports committee that has outlined a list of sports to be given. A transportation committee is looking after details; there is a speaker's committee, and there will be other committees to see that there is enjoyment for everyone.

On Friday night of this week the

Farmers Do Not Relish
Tying Horses as New
Rules Demand

TOO DARK THEY CLAIM

Night Makes Trouble—Muddy
in Rainy Weather, Dusty
in Dry

Some complaint is being made by farmers and others who are affected by the edict recently issued from the police department stopping the practice of hitching horses on the public streets. That there is little occasion for the edict and that the hitching grounds provided are not satisfactory are two of the complaints, and a threat is being made by some that they will take their business patronage away from Charleroi because of the enforcement of the law.

It is asserted by the farmers affected that at the two hitching grounds there are no lights so that if they drive in at night and hitch there they have to tie their horses and untie in the dark. It is a temptation to the evil-minded who are possessed with a mania for stealing, they argue, for them to leave anything in their buggies, for in the darkness anything could be taken and nobody would be the wiser until the owner discovered his loss.

During rainy weather the farmers state, the hitching grounds are muddy, and in dry weather they are dusty. So the complaints go.

The enforcement of the edict was started by the police department in order that the streets might be kept clean from filth that naturally accumulated when horses were tied all along the streets. Saturday nights were worst.

MINER KILLED IN UNUSUAL MANNER AT FREDERICKTOWN

A falling pit post caused the death of Tony Martina, an Italian workman at Fredericktown Monday. Martina was engaged at unloading pit posts from a barge at Vesta No. 5 and in some manner one of the posts dropped back on him, crushing his skull. Coroner Heffran was notified of the accident and will investigate.

THE PASSING OF THE DUDE

Is mankind growing less effeminate
with advancing civilization? A hundred years ago, if the voracious chon-clers of the time are worthy of credence, there was a class of man whose
chief end was to serve as a class of
fashion and a mould of form remarks
the Washington Observer. The class has had its descendants from
then to now but its each successive
reincarnation has been more slow and
difficult, as the successive names applied to the masculine human butterfly amply attest.

The beau was followed by the buck
then came the swell to be displaced
by the dandy and last of all came, not Satan but the dude and in him the difference hinted at is exemplified.

This latest reincarnation of the female man has been ephemeral in
point of time than any of his progenitors for he is known to a variety of the male human bid of paradise can not co-exist. Like the Phoenix but
one lives at a time and the ashes of
its parent is the only medium in
which the bird can be incubated.

Will Benefit You

Sold everywhere. In boxes 10c, 25c.
Everyone—especially every woman—should read the directions with every box.

None of these other gorgeous human insects lived half the time that
the dude has done for his birth dates
back more rather than less than thirty-five years. He is not as plentiful
as he was, his wings are less gorgeous but he still enjoys a sort of senile
existence.

Perhaps only a name for a new variety is necessary to insure his speedy
death and the birth of the coming
man. But who knows? Perhaps the
dust of the road and the fumes of
dead gasoline may asphyxiate the child at birth. May be he will be fatally sandbagged in his cradle with
a golf club.

Behold the dude, mark him well,
perhaps you are gazing on the last
scattered remnants of an animal about
to become as extinct as the cave
bear or the dodo.

DEXTER AND SINISTER

Right-handedness is said to be a
peculiarly human characteristic, and
to have been acquired in the process
of evolution by the genius homo remarks the Philadelphia Record. The lower animals are ambidextrous, and so are the higher apes. The scientists, who know everything, tell us
that originally man used both arms
indifferently. But, in the hand-to-
hand conflicts of the stone age, those
who pushed their right side forward
when fighting their enemies had the
advantage of shielding their hearts,
thus living to fight many another
day, while the lefties invariably were
killed in the first or second battle.
The consequence was that the right-
side-forward men had the better
chance to leave descendants, and,
gradually, the tendency to fight with
the right arm became hereditary.

Like many other scientific explanations, this one fails to explain. Primitive man's weapon was a stone ax,
a horse's jawbone or something like
that. He did not stab or cut his foe
with point and edge; he clubbed him
to death. To this kind of attack the head was evidently more exposed than
the heart; and the right handed warrior was just as likely to get cracked skull as the left-handed one. The chance of survival was equal to both.
Moreover, the population then, as now,
consisted one-half of women, who did
not fight except with their tongues;
and this organ occupies a neutral position in the center line of the body.
If half the race had no occasion to
acquire the right-handed habit, and
if the acquisition thereof by the other
half was a matter of indifference, how
could the habit become hereditary?
And how did women get right-handed?

The fact is that man is not an individual but a duality. He not only
has two arms, but two legs, two eyes,
two ears, two circulatory systems and
two brains. And, strangely enough,
the two halves do not functionate each
for its own side, but criss-cross fash-
ion. The left brain controls the sensory nerves of the right half of the body, and vice versa. The left brain
also is the center of speech, except in left-handed persons; neither is there any human being that is all right. A dexter foot goes with a sinister brain. There is little use of bothering with the question, "Why is
man right-handed?" when the answer is,
"He isn't."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Under the new marriage law the
first question they ask a man is:
"Are you drunk?" If he says he is
not, and threatens to punctuate his
answer by a punch, they in desperation turn to the woman and ask her
if she is drunk. Finding out they
are neither one drunk, they proceed
to ask them both if they are crazy.
Judging from which the lawmakers
in manufacturing that bit of original
marriage law must have considered
there was something wrong some-
where with the man and woman who
take a notion to tie up for life, and
make it obligatory on the part of the poor clerk to find out—if he can.

If some of these fellows they honor
with asking them to break ground
were by law required to break ground,
it wouldn't seem so funny.

The average safety razor that is guaranteed not to cut and won't is not as dangerous to a man's personal welfare or feelings as the safety razor

that is guaranteed to cut and will.

The beauty about cheap wash neckties is that when you get one soiled
you can go and buy another to save
the trouble of washing.

It is strange the way some people die. Why one fellow expired just in time to escape paying his subscription.

One chaplain speaks in favor of more armies. More armies, more chaplains—just see how wise he is.

Those militant suffragettes in England who have been burning churches are evidently ardent admirers of the theory that it is better to be hot here
than hereafter, though their means
of application are slightly awry.

A corps of Salvation Army workers will visit the summer resorts to save the souls of the idle rich. They are going to visit the slums, so to speak.
Trustworthy evidence that the President is running the whole job
is furnished in the fact that he appeared in ducks.

Ambassador Wilson claims he brought Huerta and Diaz together.
Well, we offer sympathy.

A jobless man can obtain plenty of whiskey in New York, but little food.
But who wants to eat any New York
food anyhow.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The story is told in an exchange of
the experiences in the clerk of courts
office in a certain Pennsylvania county had when the first couple to be granted
a marriage license under the new
eugenics law appeared:

The couple to apply was John Dra-
gonic, and Petra Miljenic.

Among other things for instance,
the ancestry of the applicants must
be inquired into—their names, places
of birth, etc. The parents and grandparents of the applicants came from
some place in the Balkans. And
they've got the kind of names that
look just awful in print and sound
worse.

And when the clerk asked Petra her
mother's maiden name and Petra
answered something that even
through an interpreter sounded much
like a phonographic reproduction of
some foreigners singing their national hymn, the poor clerk heaved a soulful sigh. And he went on with the questions, all of which had to be
translated through an interpreter:

"And," quoted the clerk from the
law, wide open at his elbow, "ask
him if he is intoxicated."

"John," obediently translated the
interpreter, "are you drunk?"
John flushed. "No, sir," he declared.

"Are you?" was the inquiry directed at Petra.

She flashed an indignant "no."
"Ask him if he is insane or if there is any insanity in the family?"
The interpreter was advised. The latter turned to John and popped the
question.

"Are you crazy?"

"Not—not to my knowledge!"

"Are you?" queried the interpreter
of Petra.

She flashed John a glance, giggled
and blushed.

"Oh, no," she declared.

And so the list of questions was
gone through with.

Here is a story they tell at Columbus, Ind.: "Tra E. Guthrie, of Indianapolis, secretary and treasurer of the Interstate Public Service Co., was
coming here a few days ago to marry
Miss Rachael Rathwick. He had made arrangements with the Rev.
William H. Book, pastor of the Tabernacle Christian church, here, to perform the ceremony.

"When Mr. Guthrie got ready to leave Indianapolis at 4 o'clock in the
afternoon he found one of the traction cars operated by his company
was late. He sent the following telegram to the Rev. Mr. Book: 'Car
ten minutes late. Please delay ceremony until I arrive.'—Indianapolis

WATCH US GROW

About one Year ago I attempted to draw your attention to the steady and permanent growth of our little Borough and since that time our valuation has increased nearly $100,000.00.

Theres A Reason

As a resident section North Charleroi, (or as it is better known as Lock No. 4) has no equal in the Monongahela Valley. In close touch with the leading industrial centers and the borough spending from $15,000 to $20,000 in sewer and street improvements, will make it still more desirable.

More homes have been built by the better class of working men in our borough during the last year than in any borough within a radius of 20 miles regardless of size, and homes that any man, regardless of position would be proud to own.

Real Estate values have increased over 30 per cent in the last year, and after our improvements are completed, which will be within the next two months, we can reasonably expect another increase in values.

Procrastination is the thief of time. I have still a few choice lots for sale at prices from $225 to $1500 each.

Several good homes, two grocery stores. Call and see us and we will be pleased to talk the matter over with you. Watch for small ads for specials every day. You may see something that will suit you.

The Art of Reading Letters.

My dear old grandfather, who wrote all his own letters in a hand which, down to the day of his death, was almost plain enough for a blind man to read, taught me never to attempt to answer a letter without placing it before me and reviewing it scrupulously, paragraph by paragraph. Hundreds of times have I devoutly blessed his memory for that lesson in the common sense of correspondence. Whenever lured by the pellucid spirit of the age I stray from his precepts I rue it, and I can feel the flush of shame overspread my face as I follow a first letter of response with a second, rendered necessary by the belated discovery of a point left uncovered. The old copybook legend, "Haste breeds carelessness," is as true as it was in the days when good penmanship and good morals went hand in hand in the training of youth. It slumping and burly burly have given its coup de grace to the once gentle art of writing letters. Is not that all the more reason why, before it is too late, we should rescue the half dead art of reading them?—Atlantic.

Dancing Birds.

One of the many strange sights on the plains of southern Africa is a party of waltzing ostriches. Their queer antics have been described thus: "When there are a number of them they will start off in the morning and after running a few hundred yards will stop and with raised wings will whirl rapidly round till they are stupefied or perhaps break a leg. The males pose also before fighting and to make their court. They kneel on their ankles, opening their wings and balancing themselves alternately forward and backward or to one side or the other, while the neck is stretched on a level with the back and the head strikes the sides, now on the right, now on the left, while the feathers are bristling. The birds appear at this time so absorbed in their occupation as to forget all that is going on around them and can be approached and caught. The male alone utters a cry, which sounds much like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight."

Audible Light.

The optophone is an instrument which makes light audible. It is based on the well known property possessed by selenium of changing its resistance when illuminated. A sensitive inductor can be made to move by merely holding a lighted match over a selenium cell to which is attached an electric battery. This movement is in the optophone attached to a telephone arrangement and so made audible. By this means, though the blind cannot actually see, they are able to locate light by the sound. A striking experiment with the optophone is to point the camera-like box to a window and adjust to "silence." Then if the hand is passed across the open end its passage is indicated by a rasping sound. If the instrument is adjusted for darkness light produces a sound varying with its intensity. Moonlight can be distinctly heard, while sunlight makes a roaring sound.

An Easy Choice.

"You must choose between us," shouted Binx. "You can't have both. When that dressmaker was last in this house I vowed that she should never come again. I have had all I'm ever going to have of being under the same roof with two semi-nutty women and requiring a rake every morning to get the odd pieces of cloth out of my clothes. I shall never again sit at my meals hearing the whir of that cursed sewing machine and listening to a lot of plaited, ruffled, cut bias and founced talk in which I have no chance to join. The day that woman comes I go. Make your decision now. Do you choose your husband or your dressmaker?"

With limpid eyes the lady looked upon her husband. Then she breathed a sigh and said: "Well, dear, if you must go what can I say?"—New York Globe.

His Prize Garden.

Somebody asked old Doc Quigley why he didn't trim off his scraggly beard. "Not on your life," he replied. "Them whiskers is th' only thing I ever had any luck in raisin'—an' it took me seven days a week an' twenty-four hours a day for twenty-three years to bring 'em to their present state of perfection!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Taking All the Blame.

"I was a fool ever to marry you," sobbed Mrs. Winks. "Now, my dear," said Winks nobly. "I cannot permit you to take the blame for that. It was I who was the fool for ever asking you. The mistake was not yours, but mine."—Harper's Weekly.

The Compliment.

"Oh, ma, I passed, and th' teacher spoke about me particular. It made my face red to hear her." "That was fine! What did she say about you, dear?" "She said she never expected I'd pass at all!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Judge and Justice.

Her Witness—You know that Justice is blind. Fair Defendant (adding the finishing touches to her toilet)—I know that Justice is blind; but, thank goodness, the Judge is not.—Exchange.

Probably She Was.

Artist (angrily)—No, I don't want a model. I only paint flowers and fruit. Model (smilingly)—Oh, that's all right, every one says I'm a peach.—Pittsburgh Plain Ledger.

Snaps In English.

A Russian artist who has so thoroughly mastered the English language that all its subtleties are as familiar to him as are those of the language of the czar was telling a few friends about the difficulties he encountered. "You have so many superfluous letters," he said, "that when I began to think I was becoming a master of your language I succeeded in having myself laughed at a dozen times a day. I began to learn English in Boston, its American fortress. One day while walking with a friend I saw a street sign. 'Oh,' I said, 'what a funny name for a street! Kneeland street.' I pronounced the K. 'You're wrong,' said my friend. 'You pronounce it "Nee-land" street. The K is silent.' I took the lesson to heart. The next day I went into a restaurant. I looked over the bill of fare. 'Give me some "Nee-neys,"' I said. The waiter looked at me aghast. Finally in desperation I pointed to the record of what I wanted. 'Oh! Kidneys,' he said. 'Excuse me,' I rejoined haughtily, 'the K is silent.'"

Gladstone on Disraeli.

G. A. Storey, A. R. A., recorded a touching incident he witnessed at the academy banquet of 1881 when a portrait for which Beaconsfield had sat to Millais shortly before his death was among the exhibits. "This unfinished work, pale and even ghastly, was in one of the side galleries. Gladstone, catching sight of the picture, went and stood long in front of it. No one disturbed him. At the end of the feast Gladstone rose and in the finest and most feeling tone delivered a panegyric on the great man who had passed away. In a voice clear and sympathetic and full of emotion he told us of his admiration for the sterling qualities of the man who, though opposed to him in politics, was in no other sense an opponent. He spoke as only one generous in heart and of a broad and great mind could speak of another great man who had passed away. The speech surpassed anything I ever heard."—London Chronicle.

A Park of Glaciers.

Glacier National park is situated in northern Montana, 200 miles northwest of Yellowstone park in an air line and 447 miles by railroad. It is under the control and supervision of the secretary of the interior, who is represented in the actual administration of the park by a superintendent, assisted by a number of park rangers who patrol the reservation. The park is bounded on the north by the Canadian line, on the east by the Blackfoot reservation and on the west and south by the Flathead river. It has an area of about 915,000 acres and derives its name from many glaciers which are scattered throughout its area. There are eighty glaciers between five square miles and a few acres in area. The park is a rugged mountainous region and contains over 250 lakes, which are surrounded by steep and beautifully wooded mountains.

Time In Teheran.

"Time is a difficult problem in Teheran," says the Baroness d'Hermelle in "Peeps Into Persia." "At approximately midday a cannon is fired on the Cossack parade ground, but the approximation depends entirely on the soldier who fires it. We all think he fires it when he feels hungry, as it is very erratic. Anyhow, when invited out to dinner we always inquire of our host whether he keeps legation or gun time. Sometimes there is half an hour's difference. Neither of these times is ordinarily correct. Correct time, not a commodity in request in Teheran, is kept by the Indo-European telegraphs, for whom it is telegraphed from London every morning at daybreak, when the line is clear, so that connection is practically instantaneous."

"Shouting" In Australia.

"Treating" is a form of hospitality that is perhaps more common in Australia than anywhere else. There it is known as "shouting." It is a legacy from the "flush times" of the gold fields—the "roaring fifties"—when to refuse to drink with a lucky digger meant running a risk of being shot on the spot. A writer says: "To shout means to insist on everybody present, friends and strangers alike, drinking at the shooter's expense, and as no one will allow himself to be outdone in this reckless sort of hospitality each one shouts in succession with too frequently deplorable consequences."

The Incentive.

"I have struck a new line of writing," said Scribbler. "I write articles from the point of view of a multimillionaire." "Indeed! How do you manage to get in the right spirit?" "Oh, that's easy. I write on the afternoon of pay days."—Exchange.

An Old Game.

"Has your wife found a house that suits her?" "Yes; but don't say anything about it. Just now she's in bluffing the landlady and she won't take it unless he redecorates the parlor and three bedrooms."—Detroit Free Press.

Strange Truth.

They say that love will go where it is sent. It appears to be always sent after the girl with a rich father. Why is it thuswise?—New Orleans Picayune.

The Principal's Jest.

Schoolteacher—This new little boy who's crying so hard says his name is Mose. Principal—Evidently an abbreviation of lachrymose.—Judge.

PUBLIC LEDGER ISSUE TREATS OF THE STATE

Beautifully bound and one of the most complete editions of a newspaper ever issued in honor of a special celebration a copy of the Philadelphia Public Ledger of the date of July 1 has been received by the Mail. The edition is published in six sections with a total of 50 pages for Pennsylvania and Gettysburg in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the battle of Gettysburg. The binding is in board.

The first section of the Public Ledger edition is devoted to the general news, with a long write-up by Col. Henry Watterson on the moral taught by Gettysburg as a feature.

The second section is a review of the Gettysburg events of many years ago and of Pennsylvania's place in history. The third section is devoted to special write-ups by experts concerning state affairs and the fourth section is similar, the industries being largely treated in this section. Still more Pennsylvania industrial and state articles are contained in the fifth section.

One of the most interesting sections of the big edition is the sixth section a part of which is devoted to town writeups. For some peculiar reason Charleroi is not given a place in this complimentary mention, but Monessen which contains more than 10,000 population, receives some space. Development of educational institutions is featured and finally the pre-eminence of Pennsylvania is discussed by Gov. J. K. Tener and three ex-governors who are still living. The Public Ledger is published by the Public Ledger Company, of which Cyrus H. K. Curtis is president.

TREASURER YOUNG NOT PLEASED AT ACT OF POWELL

State Treasurer Robert K. Young is believed not to be in accord with the stand taken by Auditor General Powell in holding up appropriations to the departments recognized for years as branches of the executive end of the state government.

The state treasurer, who was away when the storm over the payment of appropriations broke on Capitol Hill, returned and proceeded to find out how matters stood. He declined to make any statement except that he was waiting to see Mr. Powell.

When Mr. Young was Auditor General the question about payments to executive departments came up and he paid them, recognizing the health department as a branch of the executive end of the state government. It was remarked today that if Powell recognized the National Guard as an executive branch because the governor is commander-in-chief, he must also recognize the health department because all of disbursements must have the approval of the governor.

Powell is expected in Harrisburg from Pittsburgh tonight and will probably see Young. The upshot of the whole matter it is believed will be that Powell will pay the departments and make his fight on whether some items are ordinary expenses.

RAILWAYS COMPANY FILES ITS BOND

The West Side Electric Street Railway company has filed a bond of $2,000 for any damages that might be done to the property of Lucy A. Jones, of Fallowfield township, in the construction of a street car line through the Jones farm. The bond was approved nisi five days and the confirmation is to be absolute if no exceptions are filed. If exceptions are filed the case will be heard Monday, August 4, at 10 o'clock. The West Side company states that it has made an effort to secure the right of way through the Jones farm and settle damages, but no agreement can be reached. The company is to make and maintain two grade crossings, 16 feet wide on the Jones farm.

DONORA MAN'S DEATH PURELY BY ACCIDENT

In the case of Lemuel E. Hawkins, burned to death in a garage at Donora, the coroner's verdict has been returned showing death was accidental. Hawkins was engaged in vulcanizing a tire and was using a "flash" cigar lighter. The fumes from gasoline spilled on the floor became ignited and caused an explosion of the fumes from a large gasoline tank, Hawkins being enveloped in the blaze. The gasoline in the tank did not explode. The jury recommended that the tank be put under ground and that ventilators be made in the roof of the garage.

RAINS IN SPOTS JUST LIKE THE WEATHER MAN ACTS

Peculiar weather conditions were reported a short distance up the river from Charleroi Monday. Railroaders said that at Wood Run the roads were dry and dust was flying. At Roscoe there had been such a rain at 3:30 that the streets showed large puddles of water. Not far below this at Stockdale the roads were again reported to be dusty.

TROUBLE MAY BE RESULT

Ex-Commissioner McNeely of Greene Huffy It is Said

EXCHANGE TELLS STORY

"Jesse McNeely, a former county commissioner, who surrendered his office in Greene county following sensational exposures, which charged him before the grand jury with misconduct with Mrs. Abraham Roate, and who it is stated was thought to have retired permanently to private life, is both literally and figuratively out of the woods again" says an exchange, "and promises to stir up more trouble for as many persons as possible.

"To be explicit," the exchange says "McNeely is demanding that the action of the organized board of county commissioners in appointing James L. Iams, secretary to the commissioners, in place of Charles N. Huffman, whose resignation was also recommended by the grand jury, be rescinded, and that he, McNeely, be appointed to the place.

"Following McNeely's resignation, it was generally rumored that the other commissioners, who have decided to put up a fight to retain their jobs, would appoint the ex-commissioner as clerk, it being asserted that this step was decided upon to 'keep the old man's mouth shut' regarding certain episodes in Greene county's official life. It was reliably reported that McNeely was a persistent and aggressive applicant for the clerkship. It was even said that the other commissioners had said that McNeely promised to 'make things hot' for them if he was not given the appointment.

"Consequently when Iams was named there was general surprise and a great deal more speculation as to the reasons for the switch in alleged previous arrangements. McNeely was at his home in the country following his resignation, when Iams' appointment was made. He remained there quietly and it was generally believed that the courthouse scandal would die a natural death.

"On Saturday, however, the veteran politician came up from his country place, 'circulated' among Waynesburg friends for a day and returned to the rural districts, leaving a trail of rumors and statements that has again stirred up the county seat.

"McNeely, according to his friends with whom he talked said that he had emerged from his short retirement to lay claim to the office of commissioners' clerk, which he had been promised. He vows, according to these friends, that unless he is recognized in the present situation, there will be a lot of trouble brewing for a good many people, and that Greene county will be treated to a few sensations beside which those uncovered in the recent scandal will be as nothing.

"McNeely believes, according to the statements of his associates following his visit that he has been made the 'goat' in the entire business. He is not satisfied with his predicament, especially since he was turned down in the naming of the commissioners' clerk.

"McNeely proposes it is understood to make a vacancy or have one made and that somebody must suffer the consequences if he is not cared for. Veiled insinuations as to the character of the revelations which he is alleged to be ready to make are prevalent, these insinuations not reflecting creditably upon certain prominent men in Greene county.

"The former commissioner is said to be terribly in earnest in his present stand and that his actions have had an appreciable effect is indicated by the numerous conferences that have been held during the last twenty four hours."

Got Off Car Backwards.

The coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Dora Keighley, who was killed by falling from a street car on West Chestnut street Washington last Thursday, concluded the inquest Monday and returned a verdict of accidental death. The evidence showed Mrs. Keighley had stepped off the car backwards. The jury also found that the motorman and conductor were in no way to blame for the accident.

IS KILLED IN A LONG FALL TO GROUND

Patrick Connelly, 32 years old, an employe of the open hearth department of the Pittsburgh Steel plant at Monessen fell a distance of 40 feet Saturday night and was almost instantly killed. Mr. Connelly was working on the crane at the time the accident happened and when a pinch bar slipped, he lost his balance and tumbled to the platform below. The body of the victim came in contact with several obstructions and a large hole was left in the head from striking the girders and a death wound was also made in the side. Mr. Connelly did not regain consciousness after the fall, but he lived a little more than one hour.

As soon as the accident happened a messenger was sent to the home. Mrs. Connelly arrived just as her husband died.

The family have lived in the vicinity of a number of years and Mr. Connelly for a time was employed at the Page mill, but about four years ago took employment with the Pittsburgh Steel. He leaves his widow and four children.

It was the intention of the family to leave Monessen about September 1 and locate on a farm in Virginia. All arrangements for the change had been made and Mr. Connelly was looking forward with much pleasure to the time when he would quit the mill. The body was taken to the family home at Donora from which place the funeral will take place.

DIES AFTER TEN DAYS OF SUFFERING

Miss Jennie Nowak Cook of Monessen died at the McKeesport hospital Sunday night at 5:40 after ten days' suffering from injuries sustained on the night of July 18th when the young lady collided with a street car on Donner avenue, Monessen, while riding horseback. She was thrown violently against the front of the street car and picked up in an unconscious condition.

That the girl lived for any length of time surprised the physicians. Both jaw bones were broken and she was badly cut and bruised and the condition of her head and throat were such that it required the insertion of a tube to sustain breathing. It was impossible to set the jaw bones on account of the swelling in the head and from the time of the accident the girl suffered the most intense pain. The body was brought home last night and taken to the Cook home on Schoonmaker avenue, from which place the funeral was conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. O. MacDonald officiated. Interment was in Belle Vernon cemetery.

ACCIDENTS ARE SERIOUS; HIS LIFE CHARMED

Halbert E. Dawson of Beallsville, who is well known in Charleroi was in three accidents in one week and escaped injury in all, with the exception of slight bruises. He considers his life a charmed one. The first of the trio of mishaps occurred July 19, when Mr. Dawson was returning from Connellsville. The street car in which he was riding was wrecked near Merrittstown and the motorman so badly injured he died. Dawson escaped by jumping through a window and falling 10 feet.

Last Tuesday accompanied by his father, H. H. Dawson, Mr. Dawson was going to Bentleyville. When at the foot of Peterman's hill, the brakes on his auto refused to work, and the machine skidded, striking a stump with tremendous force, tearing the back wheels off the machine. Both men escaped injury.

Saturday, July 26 when returning from Brownsville, the horse Mr. Dawson was driving became frightened at a road roller near West Brownsville and bolted. One side of the buggy was in a drain and when the horse jumped was completely overturned, the horse falling at the same time. Dawson was thrown into the drain and escaped injury, with the exception of slight bruises. The horse was unhitched from the buggy and it was found that neither animal nor vehicle had been injured.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and these troubles have disappeared like magic. I have recommended the Compound to many women who have used it successfully."—Mrs. JAMES J. STACY, R.F.D. No. 3, North Bangor, N. Y.

Another Made Well.

Ann Arbor, Mich. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for me. For years I suffered terribly with hemorrhages and had pains so intense that sometimes I would faint away. I had female weakness so bad that I had to doctor all the time and never found relief until I took your remedies to please my husband. I recommend your wonderful medicine to all sufferers as I think it is a blessing for all women."—Mrs. L. E. WYCKOFF, 112 S. Ashley St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

There need be no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to remedy women's diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical. Why don't you try it?

STRUCK DOWN BY FALL PAUL REYNAL MAY DIE

Popular Monongahela
Outfielder "Beaned"
By a Friend

HAPPENS IN BALL GAME

Church League Teams of
Monongahela Engaged in
Struggle at Time

Unconscious and it is feared with his skull fractured, Paul Reynal, the star outfielder of the Monongahela baseball team was taken to a Pittsburgh hospital this morning for an operation. He was hit by a "bean" ball in a baseball game at Monongahela Monday night.

The Lutherans and Presbyterians of the Church league were playing. Reynal was playing first base as a substitute for Clyde Jenkins of the Presbyterian team. He was at bat in the fourth inning. Ray McKee, a member with Reynal on the Monongahela team was pitching for the Lutherans.

With two strikes and three balls on him, Reynal was instructed to wait. When the next ball left McKee's hands, Reynal saw it would be high and ducked ready to travel to first base. The ball was a fast one and when it struck him on the left temple he dropped like lead.

He was not rendered unconscious at the time, but was able to walk to a buggy. Arriving home at West Monongahela he went into convulsions, becoming unconscious. Consciousness has not returned since.

McKee, the pitcher, is a close friend and a teammate of the injured man. He left the field immediately after the accident. He is almost prostrated with grief and says he will never pitch another game of ball.

PAYING SCHOOL FUNDS

Work of Making Appropriations Started by
State

STATE BOARD IS BUSY

Payment of the state school appropriation has been started by State Treasurer Young and several hundred thousand dollars have already been paid out to the districts which have been certified by the Department of Public Instruction as having filed the necessary reports. It is expected that large sums will be paid out during the next six weeks, and the smaller districts, which are in need of funds, are being given consideration.

Under the school code the payment of the appropriation begins in July instead of June, as heretofore, and over 2,500 districts are to be paid when they file the required reports. The amount for distribution to the school districts which Treasurer Young will disburse is $6,797,068.18. This does not include the allowances for administration or for high schools.

BOY SMOTHERS TO DEATH UNDER DIRT

Fourteen-Year-Old Brick Worker Has Awful
Death at Manown--Takes Two Hours
to Dig Him Out

Caught under a fall of dirt at the Manown Brick works opposite Monongahela Monday afternoon, Glen Manger of Manown, was smothered to death.

Glen was employed about the brick works at some little job. He happened to be about a funnel that was used in getting dirt to the works, after it was hauled there by car. Through accident there was a fall of dirt and the boy was caught underneath.

It took two hours for workmen at the brick plant to dig him out and when they did recover him life was extinct. The family to which he belonged is well known about Manown and at Monongahela.

PAPER PUBLISHED IN YEAR 1832 WENT TO HEAVEN; SHE'S BACK NOW

Copy of "Allegheny Democrat" in the Hands of North
Charleroi Resident

Congressional activity during the time that the very Andrew Jackson was president is reported in an old copy of the Allegheny Democrat of the date of May 22, 1832, which is in possession of Mrs. W. L. Kline of North Charleroi. The paper was published at Pittsburgh. The session of congress referred to was the twenty-second.

In the congressional reports several names familiar to American history are mentioned, among them being Henry Clay and Polk. John C. Calhoun was vice president at the time.

Democratic candidates for office are announced in the paper. Jackson's name is carried as the candidate for president, with William Wilkins as the candidate for vice president. For governor, the name of George Wolf, is published. As a matter of fact Wolf served a term as governor starting from 1829 to 1835.

The "Democrat" is a six-column weekly with the front page covered with ads. The issue is No. 41 of volume V of a new series and the whole number is 415.

Advertising matter furnishes the greatest interest. One stage coach line announces with great display "mail coaches from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia," the trip requiring four days. From Pittsburgh to Baltimore, Md., the fast line trip requires three days. However, another line that is advertised for quick service agrees to deliver a passenger safely in Philadelphia from Pittsburgh in three days. Fifty pounds of baggage to a passenger could be carried the risk being entirely to the passenger.

Lottery advertisements, the like of which if carried in these days of advancement and progress would result in any newspaper being thrown out of the mails, are staple and material adds. Huge prizes are offered to the individual that holds the lucky tickets, the prizes in some places ranging from $12,000 down to a few dollars.

A stray cow must have got loose in Pittsburgh about three days before press time, for there is an advertisement announcing the fact that a very much embarrassed gentleman would appreciate the return of his gentle bovine. A hotel is advertised with good accommodations.

In those days the exchange editor must have been a very busy person for the "Democrat" is chuck full of clippings from exchanges. A boy in Wheeling got a limb broken through the devilish instrumentality of a rambunctious horse and the "Democrat" gives the item four lines with credit to the proper exchange.

The paper is unique, but newsy. It is not hard to imagine readers grabbing for it the same that they would seize the up-to-date daily of 1913. Everything is done up neatly in the publication and the printing is good. The age-yellowed paper and the peculiar construction of the type with the make-up gives it an air of distinction and old-fashioned dignity.

TWO BIG PICNICS AT PARK

Churches to Enjoy Outings This Week at
Eldora

PROGRAMS ARRANGED

Final arrangements have been made for the two big church picnics to be held this week at Eldora park. The Ladies Catholic Benevolent Association of Charleroi has charge of the first on Wednesday that will be for St. Jerome's Roman Catholic church of Charleroi. Committees are at work getting things in shape. The picnic will be an all day affair. The L. C. B. A. has the park chartered and everything will be free to the visitors once they get inside. The outing is to be public. There is to be dancing as one of the chief features. A refreshment stand will be operated.

Monongahela, Monessen, Charleroi, Donora, Belle Vernon, Riverview, and Library are all interested in the second picnic of the week which will take place on Thursday. On this day the Baptists from the places mentioned will gather at the park. Each church will wear a certain kind of ribbon to denote the church they belong to. Special cars will leave Monongahela and down river points at 8:45 o'clock and Charleroi and up river points at 10 o'clock. Amusements are to be operated for the Baptists. Sheridan Roberts of Monongahela is the chairman of a sports committee that has outlined a list of sports to be given. A transportation committee is looking after details; there is a speaker's committee, and there will be other committees to see that there is enjoyment for everyone.

On Friday night of this week the

Farmers Do Not Reluctant
Tying Horses as New
Rules Demand

TOO DARK THEY CLAIM

Night Makes Trouble—Much
in Rainy Weather, Dust
in Dry

Some complaint is being made by farmers and others who are affected by the edict recently issued from police department stopping the practice of hitching horses on the streets. That there is little occasion for the edict and that the hitching grounds provided are not satisfactory are two of the complaints, and threat is being made by some that they will take their business practice away from Charleroi because of the enforcement of the law.

It is asserted by the farmers that at the two hitching grounds there are no lights so if they drive in at night and have to tie their horses in the dark. It is a temptation to the evil-minded who are possessed with a mania for stealing their buggies, for in darkness anything could be done and nobody would be the wiser until the owner discovered his loss.

During rainy weather the farm state, the hitching grounds are muddy, and in dry weather they are dusty. So the complaints go.

The enforcement of the edict started by the police department order that the streets might be cleaned from filth that naturally accumulated when horses were tied along the streets. Saturday night were worst.

THE PASSING OF THE DUDE

Is mankind growing less effeminate
with advancing civilization? A hundred years ago, if the voracious chroniclers of the time are worthy of credence, there was a class of man whose
chief end was to serve as a class of
fashion and a mould of form remarks
the Washington Observer. The dude has had its descendants from
then to now but its each successive
reincarnation has been more slow and
difficult, as the successive names ap-
plied to the masculine human butter-
fly amply attest.

The beau was followed by the buck
then came the swell to be displaced
by the dandy and last of all came, not Saturn but the dude and in him the differences hinted at is exemplified.

This latest reincarnation of the fe-
male man has been ephemeral in
point of time than any of his progenitors for he is known two varieties of the male human bird of paradise can not co-exist. Like the Phoenix but
one lives at a time and the ashes of
its parent is the only medium in
which the bird can be incubated.

Beecham's Pills are sold everywhere.

None of these other gorgeous hu-
man insects lived half the time that
the dude has done for his birth dates
back more rather than less than thirty-five years. He is not as plentiful
as he was, his wings are less gorgeous but he still enjoys a sort of semie
existence.

Perhaps only a name for a new variety is necessary to insure his speedy
death and the birth of the coming
man. But who knows? Perhaps the
dust of the road and the fumes of
dead gasoline may asphyxiate the
child at birth. May be he will be
fatally sandbagged in his cradle with
a golf club.

Behold the dude, mark him well,
perhaps you are gazing on the last
scattered remnants of an animal about
to become as extinct as the cave
bear or the dodo.

DEXTER AND SINISTER

Right-handedness is said to be a
peculiarly human characteristic, and
it has been acquired in the process
of evolution by the genius homo remarks the Philadelphia Record. The
lower animals are ambidextrous, and so are the higher apes. The scientists, who know everything, tell us
that originally man used both arms
indifferently. But, in the hand-to-
hand conflicts of the stone age, those
who pushed their right side forward
when fighting their enemies had the
advantage of shielding their hearts,
thus living to fight many another
day, while the lefties invariably were
killed in the first or second battle.

The consequence was that the right-
side-forward men had the better
chance to leave descendants, and,
gradually, the tendency to fight with
the right arm became hereditary.

Like many other scientific explanations, this one fails to explain. Pri-
mitive man's weapon was a stone ax,
a horse's jawbone or something like
that. He did not stab or cut his foe
with point and edge; he clubbed him
to death. To this kind of attack the
head was evidently more exposed than
the heart; and the right handed war-
rior was just as likely to get crack-
ed skull as the left-handed one. The
chance of survival was equal to both.
Moreover, the population then, as now,
consisted one-half of women, who did
not fight except with their tongues;
and this organ occupies a neutral po-
sition in the center line of the body.
If half the race had no occasion to
acquire the right-handed habit, and
if the acquisition thereof by the other
half was a matter of indifference, how
could the habit become hereditary?
And how did women get right-hand-
ed?

The fact is that man is not an individual but a duality. He not only
has two arms, but two legs, two eyes,
two ears, two circulatory systems and
two brains. And, strangely enough,
the two halves do not functionate each
for its own side, but criss-cross fash-
ion. The left brain controls the sensory nerves of the right half of the
body, and vice versa. The left brain
also is the center of speech, except in left-handed persons; neither is
there any human being that is all
right. A dexter foot goes with a sinister brain. There is little use of
bothering with the question, "Why is
man right-handed?" when the answer is, "He isn't."

ELECTRIC SPARKS

Under the new marriage law the
first question they ask a man is:
"Are you drunk?" If he says he is
not, and threatens to punctuate his
answer by a punch, they in despera-
tion turn to the woman and ask her
if she is drunk. Finding out they
are neither one drunk, they proceed
to ask them both if they are crazy.
Judging from which the lawmakers
in manufacturing that bit of original
marriage law must have considered
there was something wrong some-
where with the man and woman who
take a notion to tie up for life, and
make it obligatory on the part or the
poor clerk to find out—if he can.

If some of these fellows they honor
with asking them to break ground
were by law required to break ground,
it wouldn't seem so funny.

A jobless man can obtain plenty of

But who wants to eat in New York

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The story is told in an exchange of
the experiences in the clerk of courts
office in a certain Pennsylvania coun-
ty had when the first couple to be granted
a marriage license under the new
eugenics law appeared:

The couple to apply was John Dra-
gonic, and Petra Mijenc.

Among other things for instance,
the ancestry of the applicants must
be required into—their names, places
of birth, etc. The parents and grand-
parents of the applicants came from
some place in the Balkans. And
they've got the kind of names that
look just awful in print and sound
worse.

And when the clerk asked Petra her
mother's maiden name and Petra
answered something that even
through an interpreter sounded much
like a phonographic reproduction of
some foreigners singing their national hymn the poor clerk heaved a
soulful sigh. And he went on with
the questions, all of which had to be
translated through an interpreter:

"And," quoted the clerk from the
law, wide open at his elbow, "ask
him if he is intoxicated."

"John," obediently translated the
interpreter, "are you drunk?"
John flushed. "No, sir," he declared.

"Are you?" was the inquiry directed at Petra.
She flashed an indignant "no."
"Ask him if he is insane or if
there is any insanity in the family?"
The interpreter was advised. The
latter turned to John and popped the
question.

"Are you crazy?"
"Not—not to my knowledge!"
"Are you?" queried the interpreter
of Petra.

She flashed John a glance, giggled
and blushed.
"Oh, no," she declared.
And so the list of questions was
gone through with.

Here is a story they tell at Columbus, Ind.: "Tra E. Guthrie, of Indian-
apolis, secretary and treasurer of the Interstate Public Service Co., was
coming here a few days ago to marry
Miss Rachael Rethwick. He had
made arrangements with the Rev.
William H. Book, pastor of the Tabernacle Christian church, here, to per-
form the ceremony.

"When Mr. Guthrie got ready to leave Indianapolis at 4 o'clock in the
afternoon he found one of the trac-
tion cars operated by his company
was late. He sent the following telegram to the Rev. Mr. Book: 'Car
ten minutes late. Please delay ceremony until I arrive.'"—Indianapolis
News.

WATCH US GROW

About one Year ago I attempted to draw your attention to the steady and permanent growth of our little Borough and since that time our valuation has increased nearly $100,000.00.

Theres A Reason

As a resident section North Charleroi, (or as it is better known as Lock No. 4) has no equal in the Monongahela Valley. In close touch with the leading industrial centers and the borough spending from $15,000 to $20,000 in sewer and street improvements, will make it still more desirable.

More homes have been built by the better class of workingmen in our borough during the last year than in any borough within a radius of 20 miles regardless of size, and homes that any man, regardless of position would be proud to own.

Real Estate values have increased over 30 per cent in the last year, and after our improvements are completed, which will be within the next two months, we can reasonably expect another increase in values.

Procrastination is the thief of time. I have still a few choice lots for sale at prices from $225 to $1500 each.

Several good homes, two grocery stores. Call and see us and we will be pleased to talk the matter over with you. Watch for small ads for specials every day. You may see something that will suit you.

ALL SORTS OF PRINTING

The Art of Reading Letters.

My dear old grandfather, who wrote all his own letters in a hand which, down to the day of his death was almost plain enough for a blind man to read, taught me never to attempt to answer a letter without placing it before me and reviewing it scrupulously, paragraph by paragraph. Hundreds of times have I devoutly blessed his memory for that lesson in the common sense of correspondence. Whenever lured by the pellucid spirit of the age I stray from his precepts I rue it, and I can feel the flush of shame over spread my face as I follow a first letter of response with a second, rendered necessary by the belated discovery of a point left uncovered. The old copybook legend, "Haste breeds carelessness," is as true as it was in the days when good penmanship and good morals went hand in hand in the training of youth. If slambang and burly burly have given its coup de grace to the once gentle art of writing letters, is not that all the more reason why, before it is too late, we should rescue the half dead art of reading them?—Atlantic.

Dancing Birds.

One of the many strange sights on the plains of southern Africa is a pair of dancing ostriches. Their queer antics have been described thus:

"When there are a number of them they will start off in the morning and after running a few hundred yards will stop and with raised wings will whirl rapidly round till they are stupefied or perhaps break a leg. The males pose also before fighting and to make their court. They kneel on their ankles opening their wings and balancing themselves alternately forward and backward or to one side or the other, while the neck is stretched on a level with the back and the head strikes the sides, now on the right, now on the left, while the feathers are bristling. The birds appear at this time so absorbed in their occupation as to forget all that is going on around them and can be approached and caught. The male alone utters a cry, which sounds much like an effort to speak with the mouth shut tight."

Audible Light.

The optophone is an instrument which makes light audible. It is based on the well known property possessed by selenium of changing its resistance when illuminated. A sensitive indicator can be made to move by merely holding a lighted match over a selenium cell to which is attached an electric battery. This movement is in the optophone attached to a telephone arrangement and so made audible. By this means, though the blind cannot actually see, they are able to locate light by the sound. A striking experiment with the optophone is to point the camera like box to a window and adjust to "silence." Then if the hand is passed across the open end its passage is indicated by a rasping sound. If the instrument is adjusted for darkness light produces a sound varying with its intensity. Moonlight can be distinctly heard while sunlight makes a roaring sound.

An Easy Choice.

"You must choose between us," shouted Ben. "You can't have both. When that dressmaker was last in this house I voted that she should never come again. I have had all I'm ever going to have of being under the same roof with two semi-nutty women and requiring a rake every morning to get the odd pieces of cloth out of my clothes. I shall never again sit at my meals bearing the whirl of that cursed sewing machine and listening to a lot of plaited, ruffled, cut bias and flounced talk in which I have no chance to join. The day that woman comes I go. Make your decision now. Do you choose your husband or your dressmaker?"

With limpid eyes the lady looked upon her husband. Then she breathed a sigh and said: "Well, dear, if you must go what can I say?"—New York Globe.

His Prize Garden.

Somebody asked old Doc Quigley why he didn't trim off his scraggly beard. "Them whiskers is th' only thing I ever had any luck in raisin'—an' it took me seven days a week an' twenty-four hours a day for twenty-three years to bring 'em to their present state of perfection!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Taking All the Blame.

"I was a fool ever to marry you," sobbed Mrs. Winks. "Now, my dear," said Winks nobly. "I cannot permit you to take the blame for that. It was I who was the fool for ever asking you. The mistake was not yours, but mine."—Harper's Weekly.

The Compliment.

"Oh, ma, I passed, and th' teacher spoke about me partic'larly. It made my face red to hear her." "That was fine! What did she say about you, dear?" "She said she never expected I'd pass at all!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Witness.

You know that justice is blind. Fair Defendant (nodding the finishing touches to her toilet)—I know that justice is blind, but, thank goodness, the judge is not.—Exchange.

Probably She Was.

Artist (angrily)—No, I don't want a model. I only paint flowers and fruit. Model (smiling)—Oh, that's all right, every one says I'm a peach.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Snags in English.

A Russian artist who has so thoroughly mastered the English language that all its subtleties are as familiar to him as are those of the language of the czar was telling a few friends about the difficulties he encountered. "You have so many superfluous letters," he said, "that when I began to think I was becoming a master of your language I succeeded in having myself laughed at a dozen times a day. I began to learn English in Boston, its American fortress. One day while walking with a friend I saw a street sign. 'Oh, I said, 'what a funny name for a street! Kneeland street!' I pronounced the K. 'You're wrong,' said my friend. 'You pronounce it 'Nee-land' street. The K is silent.' I took the lesson to heart. The next day I went into a restaurant. I looked over the bill of fare. 'Give me some 'id-ners,'" I said. The waiter looked at me agast. Finally in desperation I pointed to the record of what I wanted. 'Oh! Kidners,' he said. 'Excuse me,' I rejoined haughtily, 'the K is silent.'"

Gladstone on Disraeli.

G. A. Storey, A. R. A., recorded a touching incident he witnessed at the trait for which Beaconsfield had sat to Millais shortly before his death was among the exhibits. "This unfinished work, pale and even ghastly, was in one of the side galleries. Gladstone catching sight of the picture, went and stood long in front of it. . . . No one disturbed him. At the end of the first G. A. Storey and at the time, and most feeling tone delivered a panegyric on the great man who had passed away. In a voice clear and sympathetic and full of emotion he told us of his admiration for the sterling qualities of the man who, though opposed to him in politics, was in no other sense an opponent. He spoke as only one generous in heart and of a broad and great mind could speak of another great man who had passed away. The speech surprised anything I ever heard."—London Chronicle.

A Park of Glaciers.

Glacier National park is situated in northern Montana, 200 miles northwest of Yellowstone park in an air line and 47 miles by railroad. It is under the control and supervision of the secretary of the interior, who is represented in the actual administration of the park by a superintendent, assisted by a number of park rangers who patrol the reservation. The park is bounded on the north by the Canadian line, on the east by the Blackfoot reservation and on the west and south by the Flat head river. It has an area of about 975,000 acres and derives its name from many glaciers which are scattered throughout its area. There are eighty glaciers between five square miles and a few acres in area. The park is a rugged mountainous region and contains over 250 lakes, which are surrounded by steep and beautifully wooded mountains.

Time in Teheran.

"Time is a difficult problem in Teheran," says the Baroness d'Hermelle in "Peeps Into Persia." "At approximately midday a cannon is fired on the Cossack parade ground, but the approximation depends entirely on the soldier who fires it. We all think he fires it when he feels hungry, as it is very erratic. Anyhow, when invited out to dinner we always inquire of our host whether he keeps legation or gun time. Sometimes there is half an hour's difference. Neither of these times is ordinarily correct. Correct time, not a commodity in request in Teheran, is kept by the Indo-European telegraphs, for whom it is telegraphed from London every morning at daybreak, when the line is clear, so that connection is practically instantaneous."

"Shouting" in Australia.

"Treating" is a form of hospitality that is perhaps more common in Australia than anywhere else. There it is known as "shouting." It is a legacy from the "bush times" of the gold fields—the "roaring fifties"—when to refuse to drink with a lucky digger meant running a risk of being shot on the spot. A writer says "To shout means to insist on everybody present, friends and strangers alike, drinking at the shooter's expense, and as no one will allow himself to be outdone in this reckless sort of hospitality each one shouts in succession with too frequently deplorable consequences."

The Incentive.

"I have struck a new line of writing," said Scribbler. "I write articles from the point of view of a multimillionaire."

"Indeed? How do you manage to get in the right spirit?"

"Oh, that's easy. I write on the afternoon of pay days."—Exchange.

An Old Game.

"Has your wife found a house that suits her?"

"Yes; but don't say anything about it. Just now she's in bluffing the landlord that she won't take it unless he redecorates the parlor and three bedrooms."—Detroit Free Press.

Strange Truth.

They say that love will go where it is sent. It appears to be always sent after the girl with a rich father. Why is it thuswise?—New Orleans Picayune.

The Principal's Jest.

Schoolteacher—This new little boy who's crying so hard says his name is Whose. Principal—Evidently an abbreviation of lachrymose.—Judge.

By being happy to see someone better than the world.

PUBLIC LEDGER ISSUE TREAT OF THE STATE

Beautifully bound and one of the most complete editions of a newspaper ever issued in honor of a celebration, a copy of the Philadelphia Public Ledger of the date of 1 has been received by the Mail edition is published in six sections with a total of 50 pages for Pennsylvania and Gettysburg in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg. The binding is in board.

The first section of the Public Ledger edition is devoted to the general news, with a long write-up of Col. Henry Watterson on the subject of Gettysburg as a feat.

The second section is a review

ago and of Pennsylvania's political history. The third section is devoted to special write-ups by experts concerning state affairs and the fourth section is similar, the industries being largely treated in this section. Still more Pennsylvania industries are contained in the fifth section.

One of the most interesting features of the big edition is the section a part of which is devoted to town writeups. For some reason Charleroi is not given a mention in this complimentary mention. Monessen which contains more than 10,000 population, receives space. Development of educational institutions is featured and finally the eminence of Pennsylvania is discussed by Gov. J. K. Tener and ex-governors who are still living. Public Ledger is published by Public Ledger Company, of which Cyrus H. K. Curtis is president.

TREASURER YOUNG NOT PLEASED AT ACT OF POWELL

State Treasurer Robert K. Young is believed not to be in accord with the stand taken by Auditor General Powell in holding up appropriations to the departments recognized years ago as branches of the executive end of the state government.

The state treasurer, who was away when the storm over the matter of appropriations broke at Capitol Hill, returned and proceeded to find out how matters stood. He declined to make any statement except that he was waiting to see Powell.

When Mr. Young was Auditor General the question about payment of executive departments came up. He paid them, recognizing the department as a branch of the executive end of the state government. He was remarked today that if he recognized the National Guard as an executive branch because the governor is commander-in-chief, he also recognizes the health department because all of disbursements have the approval of the governor.

Powell is expected in Harrisburg from Pittsburgh tonight and probably see Young. The upshot of the whole matter it is believed will be that Powell will pay the department and make his fight on whether the items are ordinary expenses.

DONORA MAN'S

DEATH PURELY BY ACCIDENT

In the case of Lemuel E. Hawkins, burned to death in a garage at Donora, the coroner's verdict has been returned showing death was accidental. Hawkins was engaged in vulcanizing a tire and was using a "flash" cigar lighter. The fumes from gasoline spilled on the floor became ignited and caused an explosion of the fumes from a large gasoline tank, Hawkins being enveloped in the flame. The gasoline in the tank did not explode. The jury recommended that the tank be put under ground and that ventilators be made in the roof of the garage.

At Roscoe there had been such a rain at 3:30 that the streets showed large puddles of water. Not far below this at Stockdale the roads were again reported to be dusty.

TROUBLE MAY BE RESULT

Ex-Commissioner McNeely of Greene County It is Said

EXCHANGE TELLS STORY

"Jesse McNeely, a former county commissioner, who surrendered his office in Greene county following sensational exposures, which charged him before the grand jury with misconduct and who it is stated was thought to have retired permanently to private life, is both literally and figuratively out of the woods again" says an exchange, "and promises to stir up more trouble for as many persons as possible."

To be explicit, the exchange says "McNeely is demanding that the action of the organized board of county commissioners in appointing James L. Iams, secretary to the commissioners, in place of Charles N. Huff, whose resignation was also recommended by the grand jury, be rescinded, and that he, McNeely, be appointed to the place."

"Following McNeely's resignation, it was generally rumored that the other commissioners, who have decided to put up a fight to retain their jobs, would appoint the ex-commissioner as clerk. It being asserted that this step was decided upon to keep the old man's mouth shut" regarding certain episodes in Greene county's official life. It was reliably reported that McNeely was a persistent and aggressive applicant for the clerkship. It was even said that the other commissioners had said that McNeely promised to "make things hot" for them if he was not given the appointment.

"Consequently when Iams was named there was general surprise and a great deal more speculation as to the reasons for the switch in alleged previous arrangements. McNeely was at his home in the country following his resignation, when Iams' appointment was made. He remained there quietly and it was generally believed that the courthouse scandal would die a natural death.

"On Saturday, however, the veteran politician came up from his country place, 'circulated' among Waynesburg friends for a day and returned to the rural districts, leaving a trail of rumors and statements that has again stirred up the county seat.

"McNeely, according to his friends with whom he talked said that he had emerged from his short retirement to lay claim to the office of commissioners' clerk, which he had been promised. He vows, according to these friends, that unless he is recognized in the present situation, there will be a lot of trouble brewing for a good many people, and that Greene county will be treated to a few sensations beside which those uncovered in the recent scandal will be as nothing.

"McNeely believes, according to the statements of his associates following his visit that he has been made the 'goat' in the entire business. He is not satisfied with his predicament, especially since he was turned down in the naming of the commissioners' clerk.

"McNeely proposes it is understood to make a vacancy or have one made and that somebody must suffer the consequences if he is not cared for. Veiled insinuations as to the character of the revelations which he is alleged to be ready to make are prevalent, these insinuations not reflecting creditably upon certain prominent men in Greene county.

"The former commissioner is said to be terribly in earnest in his present stand and that his actions have had an appreciable effect is indicated by the numerous conferences that have been held during the last twenty-four hours."

Got Off Car Backwards.

The coroner's jury in the case of Mrs. Dora Keighley, who was killed by falling from a street car on West Chestnut street Washington last Thursday, concluded the inquest Monday and returned a verdict of accidental death. The evidence showed Mrs. Keighley had stepped off the car backwards. The jury also found that the motorman and conductor were in no way to blame for the accident.

IS KILLED IN A LONG FALL TO GROUND

Patrick Connelly, 32 years old, an employe of the open hearth department of the Pittsburgh Steel plant at Monessen fell a distance of 40 feet Saturday night and was almost instantly killed. Mr. Connelly was working on the crane at the time the accident happened and when a pinch bar slipped, he lost his balance and tumbled to the platform below. The body of the victim came in contact with several obstructions and a large hole was left in the head from striking the girders and a death wound was also made in the side. Mr. Connelly did not regain consciousness after the fall, but he lived a little more than one hour.

As soon as the accident happened a messenger was sent to the home. Mrs. Connelly arrived just as her husband died.

The family have lived in the vicinity of a number of years and Mr. Connelly for a time was employed at the Page mill, but about four years ago took employment with the Pittsburgh Steel. He leaves his widow and three children.

It was the intention of the family to leave Monessen about September 1 and locate on a farm in Virginia. All arrangements for the change had been made and Mr. Connelly was looking forward with much pleasure to the time when he would quit the mill. The body was taken to the family home at Donora from which place the funeral will take place.

DIES AFTER TEN DAYS OF SUFFERING

Miss Jennie Nuxal Cook of Monessen died at the McKeesport hospital Sunday night at 5:40 after ten days' suffering from injuries sustained on the night of July 18th when the young lady collided with a street car on Donner avenue, Monessen, while riding home. She was thrown violently against the front of the street car and picked up in an unconscious condition.

That the girl lived for any length of time surprised the physicians. Both jaw bones were broken and she was badly cut and bruised and the condition of her head and throat were such that it required the insertion of a tube to sustain breathing. It was impossible to set the jaw bones on account of the swelling in the head and from the time of the accident the girl suffered the most intense pain. The body was brought home last night and taken to the Cook home on Schoonmaker avenue, from which place the funeral was conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. O. MacDonald officiated. Interment was in Belle Vernon cemetery.

ACCIDENTS ARE SERIOUS; HIS LIFE CHARMED

Halbert E. Dawson of Beallsville, who is well known in Charleroi was in three accidents in one week and escaped injury in all, with the exception of slight bruises. He considers his life a charmed one. The first of the trio of mishaps occurred July 19, when Mr. Dawson was returning from Connellsville. The street car in which he was riding was wrecked near Merrittstown and the motorman so badly injured he died. Dawson escaped by jumping through a window and falling 10 feet.

Last Tuesday accompanied by his father, H. H. Dawson, Mr. Dawson was going to Bendleyville. When at the foot of Peterman's hill, the brakes on his auto refused to work, and the machine skidded, striking a stump with tremendous force, tearing the back wheels off the machine. Both men escaped injury.

Saturday, July 26 when returning from Brownsville, the horse Mr. Dawson was driving became frightened at a road roller near West Brownsville and bolted. One side of the buggy was in a drain and when the horse jumped was completely overturned, the horse falling at the same time. Dawson was thrown into the drain and escaped injury, with the exception of slight bruises. The horse was unhitched from the buggy and it was found that neither animal nor vehicle had been injured.
